Rep. Stacy is in the running for leadership post

FRANKFORT — State Representative John Will Stacy of West Liberty is one of three legislators seeking his party's selection for Democrat Whip when the General Assembly convenes in January. As of now, the position is one one of three leadership posts to be contested within the Democrat caucus.

Rep. Joni Jenkins of Shively has announced she will challenge Speaker Pro Tem Larry Clark of Louisville for his position and Rep. Bob Damron of Nicholasville said he plans to campaign for caucus chairman, a post now held by Rep. Charlie Hoffman of Georgetown.

Stacy's bid for party whip pits him against Rep. Ruth Ann Palumbo of Lexington and Rep. Tommy Thompson of Owensboro.

The brewing caucus battles stem from splits among top-ranking House Democrats that materialized during this year's legislative session when both Rep. Clark and Rep. Wilkey broke with other party leaders — Speaker Jody Richards, Majority Floor Leader Rocky Adkins of Sandy Hook, and Caucus Chairman Hoffman — on support for a proposed casino gambling amendment that failed to reach the floor for a vote.

Investors buy $40,000 unpaid tax bills at sale

Additional $100,000 of overdue taxes to be sold; to cost more to clear titles

With two investment companies and one private investor in attendance at the Morgan County Courthouse Saturday morning to snap up delinquent property tax bills, more than $40,000 worth of the overdue bills were purchased and will constitute liens against the properties.

The three investment companies purchased a combined one- tenth of the total $143,625.57 worth of delinquent county tax bills offered for sale by Sheriff Mickey Whitt — a total of $14,625.57, with each purchaser acquiring property liens worth about $4,783.00 in unpaid taxes. (The sheriff is restricted by state law from selling more than 10 percent of the county's total number of delinquent tax bills at the time they are offered for sale each year.)

To clear the title to their properties, delinquent taxpayers whose liens were sold Saturday will have a year to pay the tax bill plus 12 percent interest and legal fees to the investors who bought the liens.

For other delinquent taxpayers, the cost of clearing the title to their properties will be significantly higher. The county's remaining unpaid tax bills — totaling over $100,000.00 — have been turned over to the county clerk, where investors have served notice they inof Business augments the Center's primary mission to develop new businesses, plus the transition to MSU has been seamless."

Johnathan Gay, director of the West Liberty Innovation Center, assumed the additional duties as business incubator director, according to Dr. Robert Albert, dean of MSU's College of Business.

"Gay's position as innovation center director at the enterprise center and the statewide economic development network he works within made him a logical choice to coordinate the business incubator," said Dr. Albert.

MSU President Wayne Andrews appointed an Advisory Committee of area professional and business leaders to assist in the development of incubator policies, the review of business plans and tenant applications, and provide advice to Center tenants on issues and problems related to the growth of their respective businesses.

MSU's College of Business also assigned a full-time small business development consultant to work from the Center. According to Michael Rodriquez, SBDC's business consultant, "We work with prospective, new and existing businesses. Our objective is to assist businesses, develop and growth. The business does not have to be located in the Enterprise Center to receive our free services and our location in West Liberty is convenient for area clients to visit. We welcome all inquiries."

MSU's Regional Enterprise Center now has seven businesses in its Incubator.

"Four of the businesses are operating full time from the Center," according to Dailey, "meaning the success of these enterprises is of paramount importance to the owners because their livelihood is primarily dependent upon their success."

"One characteristic of an entrepreneur is that he or she is a risk taker — these individuals fit that mold," said Gay, whose rural enterprise network has been successful in securing grants for some of the businesses to pay for qualified services such as legal advice, patent reviews, prototype development and marketing.

Since opening in 2004, the Regional Enterprise Center's Business Incubator has undergone two physical modifications and another is planned in 2008. According to Dailey, "We learned early on that smaller offices were in greater demand than the larger complexes and we have been able to adapt to meet this need."

When the latest realignment is completed, the Center will have three large complexes and 12 one-or-two-person offices. "Depending on the business and the owners' needs, low monthly rental rates are the norm and grants are sometimes provided to cover rent for a business during the initial startup period," Dailey said.

"Tenants don't have to worry about back office support, janitorial issues and other day-to-day complications and can concentrate on product or service development," said Gay. Incubator tenants also have access to all meeting rooms, copiers, printers, communication services and high speed Internet.

Additional information about the Business Incubator and the services provided by the Small Business Development Center and the Innovation Center can be obtained by calling the Center at (606) 743-4005, or online at www.moreheadstate.edu/msurec/

The Grand Jury reported it heard evidence in the case of Commonwealth vs. James M. Williams and Commonwealth vs. Lester Drake and returned no true bills.

Tax Bills

tend to buy a significant portion of them.

One of the investors — Sass Muni V, LLC, of Philadelphia, Pa., plans to buy up to $70,000.00 worth of the remaining unpaid tax bills. Atty. Paul Blair, a private investor from Morehead, also intends to purchase a number of liens, as well as Tax Ease, Inc., of Dallas, Texas. Tax Ease last year purchased unpaid Morgan County tax bills going back to the year 2000.

For late purchases of tax liens from the County Clerk's Office, the investors are charged a 30 percent penalty plus a 1 percent fee. To clear their titles, property owners would have to pay this amount, plus legal fees, on top of the normal 12 percent per annum interest.

If the lien remains unpaid, the investor can legally hold them for up to 10 years before petitioning the court to have the property sold. When it is sold, the investor gets back his initial investment from the sale price plus interest and fees, with the remaining going to the county to settle the tax claim.

Considered by many as predatory and heartlesss, the investment in tax liens by speculators is entirely legal because of a state law enacted in 1998.

Before the law was enacted, delinquent tax bills were rarely acquired and sold by the counties. The upside to the purchase of tax bills by private investors is that counties get the money owed and as property owners become aware of the practice, tax delinquencies tend to go down.

By law, the sheriff must advertise tax delinquencies in local newspapers and on the Internet. The county attorney also sends letters to remind those who owe taxes. Every May, the sheriff auctions 10 percent of overdue claims to the public at the courthouse.

The presence at Saturday's sale of announced outside investors planning to purchase large numbers of liens was a first for Morgan County and representative from the state Finance and Administration Cabinet was present to assist with regulation of the sale.

Adoption Fair

There will be an Adoption Fair on June 22, 2008 at Morehead State University from 1-4 p.m. in Adrian Doran Student Center. By attending the Adoption Fair you will be able to talk to several different agencies and also attend a workshop geared for what you particular interest in adoption might be. These agencies are from different parts of the state, and have adoption programs in the US, International, or the SNAP adoptions. The workshops will include families that have adopted children from China, Adoption 101, and the Special Needs Adoption Program.

Come, browse the different booths and learn about the different types of adoptions and have experts answer your questions. If you have ever thought about or considered adoption don't miss this event. For more information you can call Bonnie Darnall, SNAP Coordinator for the Northeastern Region at (606) 845-2381.

Farm/Home Safety Tips

- Replace 2-wire 115 volt outlets with new 3-wire grounded outlets. The third prong fitted into a grounded outlet completes the grounded system & protects you against current from defective appliances & equipment.
- Inspect overloaded wiring. Additional wiring may be needed to handle increased electrical loads; whenever toasters or heaters are slow, lights dim or TV picture temporarily shrinks. Prevent overloads by using the right size & type fuse.
- Stay out of a flooded basement while electricity is still on. Call your cooperative office. Disconnect utilities yourself only if the basement is dry. Also, turn off the gas. A light switch can ignite gas in a flooded basement. Before using equipment, gas or wiring again have them checked by a qualified serviceman.
- Replace extension cords with permanent wiring & outlets wherever you regularly plug in appliances or lamps. Extension cords provide temporary service, but could cause tripping, fire & shock hazards when used in one location for several months.
- Label entrance panels. Show what use is made for each circuit. When a fuse blows or breaker opens, the source of trouble can be quickly identified if labels tell which lights, outlets or equipment are on each circuit.

Dems say Obama could win Appalacia if he'd spend time here

The headline is "Will Obama fight for rural votes?" but the story in the May 25 issue of the Lexington Herald-Leader is almost all about Appalachia — specifically, Kentucky and West Virginia, where Hillary Clinton beat Barack Obama like a rented mule in primaries this month. The prevailing view of Democrats quoted by Linda Blackford is that if Obama spent time in Appalachia, he would overcome some of the resistance based on his race and false rumors that he is a Muslim (cited as fact by one top Republican county official to Blackford).

The hopeful Democrats cite the example of John F. Kennedy, who spent half the month before the 1960 West Virginia primary showing voters in the Mountain State that "he wasn't wearing the pope's clothes," said Charles Peters, who was Kennedy's Kanawha County chairman and went on to serve in his administration and founded The Washington Monthly. Obama made only one campaign stop this year in West Virginia, and likewise in Kentucky, and lost both by more than 30 percentage points.

We have no doubt that Obama could gain many votes by spending time in Appalachia and finding common ground like that state Rep. Greg Stumbo of Prestonsburg, Ky., mentioned to Blackford: "He could say, 'I'm one of you, I've been looked down upon because of my color and we've got to overcome these stereotypes.' I think that would sell pretty well up here. People want to hear him say things, like 'I'm not a Muslim, I'm not part of this sect that hates America.'"

But time is the most pecious commodity for presidential nominees, the election is now about electoral votes, and Kentucky and West Virginia only have eight and five, respectively. The real battle in Appalachia this fall is likely to be in Pennsylvania and Ohio, particularly the "Pennsyltucky" congressional district that runs from Pennsylvania to Kentucky. Princeton University history professor Sean Wilentz noted on Huffington Post the importance of Pennsylvania and Ohio to Democrats.

In Ohio and Pennsylvania, the map looks more favorable to Obama. Peters told her that Obama also needs to make an effort in other regions. "They still have to try because these people exist all over the country " he said. "I just think they (the Obama campaign) didn't realize how hard they had to fight back. It's got to be a multi-pronged attack."

Summer I: Monday, June 2 through Friday, June 27.

Summer II: Monday, July 7 through Friday, Aug 1.

Fall: Monday, Aug. 18 through Friday, Dec. 12.

For those not yet enrolled who are considering attending MSU, there is still time to submit an application for the summer or fall terms. Prospective students may call the Office of Enrollment Services at (606) 783-2000 or (800) 585-6781 opt #1 for admissions assistance.

Account balances are due in full one week prior to the start of class for each semester being attended.

Although MSU no longer offers a deferred payment plan, students may take advantage of a different option to pay their bill at a later date, while at the same time, confirming that they will be attending classes.

If any student is unable to pay his or her full balance prior to the deadline, he or she may complete an online Statement of Intent, which explains payment requirements. The online statement must be completed by set deadlines to prevent a student's class schedule from being canceled. READER SEEKS INFO ON PHIPPS FAMILY

Dear Editor,

My name is Terry (Phipps) Underwood and I am seeking information on my biological family. I was adopted at birth by the late Harless Underwood and the late Ruth (Ramey) Underwood. My biological mother was the late Ruby Lee Phipps, who was killed by a drunk driver in 1963 at the age of 28, and that happened years prior to my learning of my adoption and that she was my mother.

My grandfather was the late Daniel (Boone) Phipps, who was born in Morgan County, and who was a son of the late Samuel Ewell Phipps and the late Frances Phipps.

According to the 1900 Morgan County Census, the Samuel Ewell Phipps family moved to Wisconsin around 1900 and there was no further information.

My grandfather had the following brothers and sisters: Sarah E., Thomas A., Annie, Lou E., Lucy J. and Samuel E. Jr.

I would like to hear from any descendants of Samuel Ewell and Frances Phipps. I would like to know where the family moved to in Wisconsin.

I would also be interested in knowing if anyone can tell me how my grandfather, the late Daniel Boone Phipps ties to the late A.L. Phipps of the gospel singing group, The Phipps Family. I also sing gospel music and have made 10 gospel CD recordings and seven gospel DVD recordings since 1987, and I sing on television and at festivals.

For those who may related and reading this, and who may be interested in knowing, my grandfather Daniel Boone Phipps, is buried with his wife, Nina Wright-Phipps, in the Wright Family Cemetery at Wheelwright, Floyd County, Ky.

Please contact me if you can help me in any way as I would so greatly appreciate it. Thank you and may God bless you.

The Scorcher's reporter joins up with the 5th Kentucky Mounted Infantry Regiment

Part 3 Of A Series

By Tony Adkins

NOTE; A West Liberty man continues the account of his travels to join up with the 5th Kentucky Mounted Infantry, CSA, as a war reporter for his hometown paper, "The Mountain Scorcher, owned and edited by James Thornly." Companies A, B, C, D, and E, in all more than 400 men comprising more than half of the 5th Kentucky, were recruited at West Liberty between Oct. 19 and Oct. 28, 1861. At the time of this writing, the 5th Kentucky was commanded by Col. Andrew Jackson May, who had helped raise the Morgan County companies. At the time of this writing, the 5th Kentucky was attached to General Humphrey Marshall in Virginia. The writer's account is filled with well-researched details of civilian and military life during the Civil War and the geography of the areas covered.

Col. Andrew Jackson May

The reporter and wife, Cassandra

April 29, 1862: After breaking camp and packing up Old Dock, I passed through Shelby Gap and headed down the steep mountain road into Virginia. It was a crude, narrow road hacked out of the side of the mountain, and not much improved over what I had traveled from home. After reaching the valley floor and heading southeast, the road became wider and looked to be well maintained.

Over the next few days, I made my way through the Virginia countryside, making good time and passing through several small villages. The people were friendly and their farms and dwellings were neat and well-kept.

The fields were surrounded by stone and split rail fences that kept in fat sheep and large Holstein cattle. Some of the land was freshly turned and ready for spring planting. It reminded me of Morgan County, except for the very high mountains that frame the valleys. I could see no signs that a war was anywhere near.

I crossed the Guests River into the larger town of Gladesville, and stopped a roadhouse for a hot meal. I had a conversation with some older residents during the meal and told them of my destination. They told me of the passing through of Gen. Humphrey Marshall, Jack May and the 5th Kentucky some months earlier.

I was given directions south to Osborne Ford on the Clinch River. That would take me through Old Courthouse, Va., with Lebanon a few miles south of that.

I told them of my Webb relatives coming from Scott County, Va., to Johnson County, Ky., in 1844. They knew of the Webb name and that some of them still lived along Moccasin Creek near Lebanon. Maybe I could look them up if time permitted.

I left early the next morning and arrived at Osborne's Ford that afternoon. The river was low and I had no trouble crossing. I continued south along Lebanon Road, hoping to reach Jack May's encampment before dark.

A few miles down the road, I was challenged and stopped by Confederate pickets at a roadblock. I showed them my letter from Mr. Thornley and the packet for Colonel May. I was taken to the headquarters tent of Colonel A.C. Moore, commander of the 29th Virginia Regiment.

After being questioned and my letter checked out, Colonel Moore wrote a pass giving me clear passage through other Confederate units between here and Lebanon.

I reached pickets from the 5th Kentucky just at dusk on May 7, 1862, and showed them my pass from Colonel Moore. I was taken to the tent of Colonel Jack May. He had recently been promoted to full colonel, and given overall command for the 5th. The promotion brought with it a large wall tent and other luxuries befitting an officer and gentleman.

Colonel May was redheaded and a bit on the scrawny side, but was very pleasant and interested in how we were related. He accepted the package from William and called for his orderly to show me around and take me to the mess tent.

The camp seemed to be abuzz with gray clad troopers scurrying hither and yon. Colonel May told me about plans to retake Princeton in the coming days. It had fallen on April 30 when six companies of Yankee cavalry under General Jacob D. Cox routed the local militia after a 13-hour fight. Princeton and nearby Rocky Gap were considered the gateway to Southwest Virginia.

The overall Union objective is the Lynchburg and Knoxville Railroad that runs through Princeton, a vital link between the eastern and western theaters of war.

Cox was stopped by General Henry Heath's New River Division before reaching the railroad. Gen. Humphrey Marshall has ordered Colonel May's 5th Kentucky, along with Colonel May's 29th Virginia, Colonel Trigg's 54th Virginia, Dunn's Battalion, Bradley's Mounted Rifles and Health's New River Division (2,195 men) to retake Princeton from the Union Forces. Colonel May has given me permission to accompany them, but could make no guarantee of my safety.

I spent the next few days visiting the different companies of the regiment and found many Morgan County men all anxious for news from home. I saw William Lykins and his five sons, cousin Joseph Adkins and William "Billy" Conley, a relative of Cassandra. As we visited more of the camp, we ran into Captain W.T. Havens, Major W.W. Cox, Walter S. Henry and J. Will Perry. I will see many more, I am sure.

As the mess tent, we were served roast mutton, corn cakes and some type of muffin sweetened with black strap molasses and coffee. I was invited to put my bedroll in Colonel May's tent, and Old Dock was given his usual nosebag of oats at the picket line with other regimental horses.

The morning of the 14th was overcast with no sign of the sun. We had a frost so thick that I could track I could track rabbits in it. We had a breakfast consisting of broiled salt pork, Johnny cakes and boiling coffee strong enough to walk on.

Activity picked up early in camp. Quartermaster W.W. Cox handed out boxes of .58 caliber rifle cartridges, powder and ball for the Colt Navy revolvers and rations of hardtack and jerky. Everyone feels that the attack on Princeton is near; I made my way to Colonel May's tent looking for information.

I kept my distance when I saw a group of officers bent over a map on the a field table. All around, men were cleaning their 1841 Mississippi Rifles, most captured last year at Harper's Ferry. Others had been issued .58 caliber three band Enfield Rifles smuggled from England via Bermuda.

Officers and non-commissioned officers carried the .44 caliber 1851 Colt Navy six shot revolvers. A few had the nine shot LeMat .60 caliber revolvers imported from France.

That night there was nervousness throughout the camp. Colonel May and Major Hiram Watkins were restless and acted like a couple of hens on a hot rock. Word was finally passed down that we would be moving on Princeton in the morning, with the attack set for early morning on the 16th.

Late into the night, those with musical talent gathered in groups with banjos, fiddles, Jew's Harps and maple fifes. We heard "When This Cruel War is Over," "Goober's Peas," "Billy in the Lowgrounds," "Dixie" and several others.

Other troopers sat around the campfires playing cards or checkers. The air was filled with the aromatic smells of tobacco being smoked in carved Meerschaum and Briar Pipes. Others emitted obnoxious clouds of smoke from Stogies. This brought back memories of Mr. Thornley's foul-smelling office of The Mountain Scorcher. It also reminded me of the need to finish my latest dispatch to him. Colonel May will send a courier west into Kentucky tomorrow.

I also have a packet of letters for Cassandra and the girls to send along. The Whippoorwills were proclaiming the time is now to plant corn. To me, their hollering is a sad, lonely sound, reminding me of home.

One impromptu band closed out the night with "My Old Kentucky Home." The combination of the two plus the uncertainty of what tomorrow holds brings emptiness to my heart, as well as thoughts of my beautiful Cassandra.

AREA DEATHS

In Loving Memory Of David V. Warren

David Vernon Warren, of Hazel Green, Kentucky and Lakeland, Florida, beloved husband of Mildred Nickell Warren and loving father of Brian David Warren, went to be with Jesus Thursday, May 22, 2008, at the age of 68 years, 4 months, and 3 days. David was born at North Star, Michigan on January 19, 1940. He was a retired pastor of the Church of the Nazarene after having served for 37 years. He is survived by his mother, Clara Warren, of Lakeland, Florida, his loving wife, Mildred Nickell Warren, of Hazel Green, Kentucky and Lakeland, Florida; one son, Brian David Warren and wife, Marcia Neihof Warren, of Lakeland, Florida; three grandchildren, Austin, Conner, and Lilly Warren; two brothers, Dale Warren and his wife, Becky, of Greenwood, Wisconsin; Paul Warren and his wife, Kim, of Bartow, Florida; two sisters, Janice Jeter and husband, Lige Jeter, of Ft. Myers, Florida; and Virginia Deal and husband, Al, of Lakeland, Florida; and sister-in-law, Joann Warren, of Lakeland, Florida. He also leaves behind 15 nieces and nephews.

David graduated from Mt. Carmel High School in 1958 at Vancleve, Kentucky, from Kentucky Mountain Bible College in 1961 at Jackson, Ky., from Trevecca Nazarene University in Nashville, Tennessee with a bachelor's degree in Ministerial Studies in 1963, and received a Master's Degree from Rollins College in Winter Park, Florida in 1974 in Theology and Pastoral Administration. From 1975-1985 he was an Adjunct Professor for the Nazarene Theological Seminary where he taught ministerial courses for ordination and licensure. Classes were held at the Central Florida District Church of the Nazarene offices in Orlando, Florida. During his ministry as pastor he was president of the Orange County Ministerial Association of Churches for four years and secretary of Ministerial Studies on the Central Florida District for approximately ten years.

David and Mildred were married June 5, 1963, and would have celebrated 45 years of marriage in June. After David's retirement in 1996 due to health complications, his favorite activity was enjoying and spoiling his grandchildren. David loved traveling and he and Mildred traveled extensively all over the world, but he always said he enjoyed Kentucky and its people best. His last trip was Christmas of 2006, a cruise to Hawaii. When asked what he wanted for Christmas, he said, "I want to go to Hawaii and take my grandbabies on a nice cruise."

During his ministry David pastored Nazarene Churches in Morristown, Tennessee, in Winter Park, Florida and Orlando, Florida. His last church grew and relocated in new facilities and was renamed Harmony Church of the Nazarene. He was able to attend the ground breaking ceremony for this facility.

Eight preachers and three pastors' wives have been called to the Lord's service through David's ministry, encouragement, prayers and support. He loved music and loved to play the organ, with his wife at the piano, for pre-service music. When he worshiped, the 'stones didn't need to cry out.' He loved lifting his beautiful, baritone voice in congregational singing, directing or singing in the choir and playing his trombone in the orchestra. Most of all, his church family loved his pastoral prayers when he knelt before the altar and lifted them to the throne of grace, as only a loving pastor can.

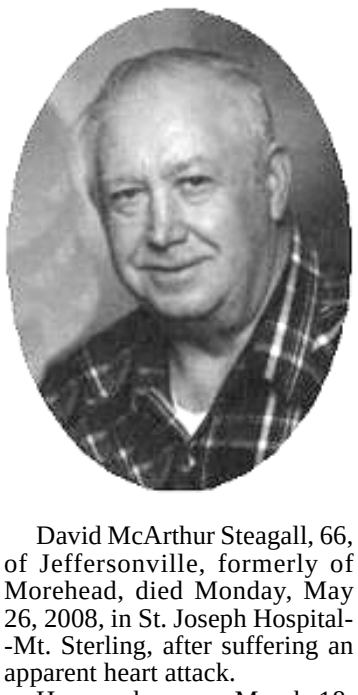

It was common for his church to sponsor Work and Witness trips through the Church of the Nazarene with funds and teams of people. His unselfish giving has introduced Jesus to hundreds. He wrote checks and sealed them in envelopes because his stewardship journey was one of joy. He gave generously to build churches in Mexico, Haiti, Alaska and the Dominican Republic. He loved helping fill a cargo plane full of medical supplies to Africa under the direction of his friend, Dr. Gary Morsch. His excitement over sponsoring the Jesus Film and feeding and educating orphans was his delight.

His District Supt. Dr. Larry Dennis, in Lakeland, Florida writes, "He will be remembered as a gentle leader, one who modeled Christlike shepherding throughout his ministry. He took a team approach to serving the Lord whether pastoring or working at Children's Camp.

General Supt. Dr. J.K. Warrick states, "Truly he left a legacy of faith and love behind for others to follow that path. His influence will live on for generations to come through the lives of those who have been touched by his life."

As a family, Brian and I would like to thank all of you for your prayers, phone calls, cards, food, flowers and other acts of kindness too numerous to mention. We love all of you. May the One who so faithfully led our wonderful husband and father, Dave Warren, across the years lead all of us to that great and wonderful day when we all shall meet again in that beautiful place called Heaven.

MY VOICE

Though I was blind and could not see
I saw with laughter and joy
And though I could not walk, I went to places no one could
For I traveled to where the heart
Even though I could not talk and say what I thought, my voice was heard
For it was with love and kindness I spoke my words
And though I seem afflicted, it was only that I was blessed
So to you I know I am gone, please don't feel alone
Just listen to your heart
For my voice still lives on.

Robert Louis Stevenson, in search of health, went to the South Seas to live. The natives fell in love with him. They built a road up the mountain to his home.

They called it, "The Road of the Loving Heart."

That is what the Lord has done for you. He has built a road to your heart.

He comes to give you strength for the day, rest for your labor, light for your way, grace for your trials, help from above, unfailing sympathy, undying love.

Today as we He walks up "the Road of the Loving Heart," receive Him, won't you?

Protecting Your Trees From Cicadas

After cicada eggs hatch, the tiny, ant-like nymphs quickly drop from the trees and burrow five to 46 centimenters (two to 18 inches) underground in search of tree roots to feed upon.

For the next 13 to 17 years they feed on the juicy roots of the plants. After 13 or 17 years, a natural "clock," which remains a mystery to scientists, tells them at it is time to come out of the ground.

In the weeks before the nymphs emerge, periodical cicadas dig their tunnels to soil the surface and prepare to leave the ground. Amazingly, all the cicadas seem to come out of the ground at the same time in enormous numbers.

The nymphs leave the ground and begin to climb trees and poles. As they climb, they molt, or grow out of their exoskeleton. They split open the back of their brown and brittle exoskeletons, wiggle out, and abandon them, empty and still clinging to the trees.

They continue to climb to the treetops to begin their constant buzzing calls, trying to attract a mate. If they are successful, mating occurs, eggs are laid and the cycle begins again.

It is the female cicada that harms trees. Choosing deciduous trees, she cuts two slits in small pencil sized (or smaller) branches and twigs, and lays about 24 eggs. She then goes on to another twig and repeats the process. A female cicada can deposit up to 600 eggs.

Where infestations are heavy, the egg laying process is repeated on a tremendous number of twigs. This causes the twigs (or ends of the tree) to die, and often break off. With a heavy infestation, it often destroys young trees and bushes. While the damage may look bad on large trees, a mature tree can usually survive the damage.

Affected Trees, Bushes and Shrubs

Cicada love any woody stalk 1/2 inch or less in diameter. Pines are not so much because of the sap. Any trees from soft gum trees to medium beech, apple, etc. to harder woods such as maples, oaks and hickory. The real key is branches that are 1/2 in diameter or less, with long open sections that they can "stitch" to lay eggs (that is why pines are not targets).

Seventeen-year cicada just emerging from its chrysalis.

The following trees need protection:

Apple trees, arborvitae, ash, beech, black eyed susan, crab apple, cherry, dogwood, fruit trees in general, grape vines, hawthorn, hickory, holly, Japanese maple, lilacs, magnolia, maple, oak, peach tree, pear tree, raspberry vines, rhododendron, roses, rose of sharon, spirea, viburnum and willow.

The following trees do not need protection:

Most flowers, herbs and vegetables.

Insect nettings are the most effective way to protect your young trees which are most susceptible. A cheesecloth or insect net will keep them out of the tree. The netting tends to be wrapped completely around the tree and tied, or sealed off to keep any insects from entering. Because cicada are large insects, a 1/4" netting is effective.

REWARD

I feel that the greateset reward for doing is the oppotunity to do more.

• Apply an ice pack or cold compress to the area of a bee sting to help relieve pain and swelling of the tissue. This also works for a black eye.

• To sooth a sore, red nose in th winter, apply lip balm or Vaseline to the affected area.

In recognition of the National Fishing and Boating Week, the Daniel Boone National Forest is offering two days of free boat launching.

On Saturday, June 7, and Sunday, June 8, no recreation fee pass will be required for boat ramp use at Cave Run Lake or Laurel River Lake.

The fee waiver at these locations coincides with Kentucky's free fishing days. The public can enjoy two days of free boating, free fishing and free use of the boat ramps.

Each year, Kentucky offers free fishing days during the first weekend in June. At this time, anyone can fish Kentucky's public waters without a fishing license. State creel limits and other regulations remain in effect.

In addition to free boat launch, kids' fishing derbies will be held at several locations on Saturday, June 7, including Minor E. Clark Fish Hatchery in Rowan County, from 7:30-9:30 a.m., for kids up to 13. For more information call 606-784-6428.

The fishing derbies are free and open to the public. Children must be accompanied by an adult.

Sponsors of the fishing derbies include the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and various community businesses and organizations.

Junction News

By Kathy Bolin

June 2 – Greetings from the Junction,

I had an eventful weekend. On Thursday evening, my daughter, Shan, came in from Orlando, Fla., for her brother's graduation. Graduation was at Morgan County High School's Veterans Memorial Gymnasium. The ceremony was nice, but, for me, a little sad. I have lost my baby. Hopefully he will grow up now. Yeah, right! Congratulations go out to all seniors.

Probably by now you have heard about the death of Charlie Robbins, husband of Annaleen Pack Robbins, of Lick Branch. Charlie was diagnosed with cancer seven weeks ago. Sympathy goes out to the family and friends.

I would like to congratulate Emily Bailey, my adopted daughter. Emily graduated from East Valley fifth grade to the middle school. Congratulations, sweetie!

Wedding bells are ringing at Williams Creek Elkfork Church! Kenny Thomas and Kelli Vest will be united in marriage on Saturday, June 7. Congratulations!

On Sunday we had a memorial service at Williams Creek Chuch for all members who have passed away. We had approximately 80-85 peole attended, along with George Wright and the Hopeful Harvesters, of Fairborn, Ohio. Dedication was given by Earnie Wright, of Troy, Ohio, and dinner was served after the service in the church basement.

Ky. Sheriff's Boys' & Girls' Ranch set for this summer

The Kentucky Sheriffs' Boys & Girls Ranch in Gilbertsville announces the 2008 Summer Camp opened Sunday, June 1, 2008, with boys in attendance. Our eight-week camping program, designed to build the boys' and girls' self esteem, moral character and to teach respect for themselves, others and law enforcement professionals, will alternate 8-11-year-old boys and girls from throughout Kentucky this summer, with the last week of camp being July 20-25.

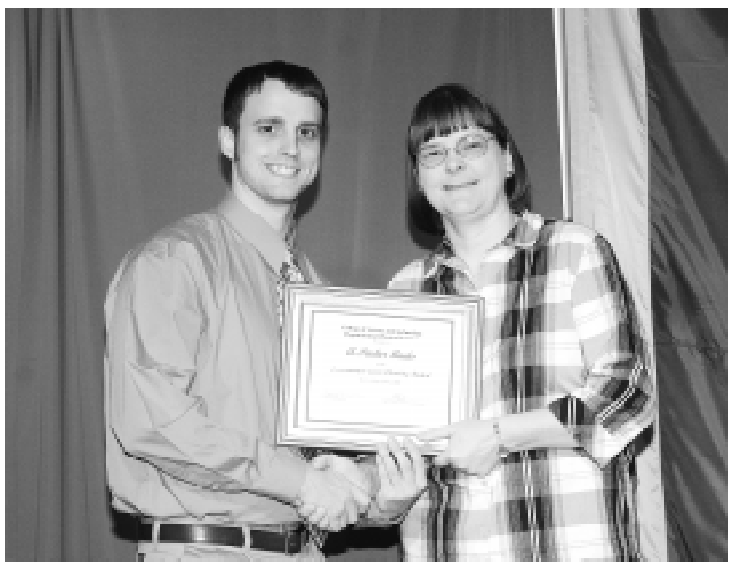

Sheriffs and deputies across the state transport children to and from camp in cruisers, vans, buses or whatever it takes to get these boys and girls to camp! We do not charge a fee to the children attending and rely on individual and corporate donations, along with fundraisers sponsored by various sheriffs to supply the needs.

We have now given a free weeks' summer camp experience to over 30,000 children in Kentucky. As you can imagine, it takes a great deal to continue to reach these youth. We are dependent on our $25 individual memberships, $150 business memberships and summer camp donations to sponsor a child for camp. At a minimum cost of $300 per child, per week, we trust in your continued support.

Fun and excitement await the campers and we hope to give each child a week of memories that will last a lifetime! We have gifts for each child to bring home, lots of programs and activities (arts and crafts, swimming, nature programs, sports, pony rids, etc.) to ensure their fun and learning while at camp.

Applications and camp dates are available at your local sheriff's office. If you have a child or know of a child who could benefit from our program, please contact your local sheriff. We look forward to serving your county's 8-11-year-old boys and girls this summer and providing them with a free week of summer vacation!

Ranch Director Jerry Wagoner added, "We thank all those who have helped keep our Boys & Girls Ranch alive and look forward to your continued support. T become a member, make a donation, sponsor a child for camp, or for more information about our program, contact the Boys & Girls Ranch at 270-382-8660 or your local sheriff's office.

Rising energy prices spur gas leasing for drilling rights among landowners

The Associated Press reports, "Unsuspecting property owners around the country are getting trampled in an old-fashioned land rush by natural gas companies and speculators trying to lock up long-ignored drilling rights quickly and cheaply. Stories of fast-talking industry representatives using scare tactics to strong-arm people into signing lowball leases are popping up in rural areas and suburbs from New York to West Virginia to parts of Indiana and Texas."

This is an old story in places familiar w ith oil and gas drilling, but rising energy prices have prompted leasing activity in many areas that are unfamiliar with it, or among landowners who haven't seen it in many years and lack working knowledge of the process. The story also mentions the Illinois Basin, which extends into Indiana and Kentucky.

The story tells the cautionary tale of Brad Castle, a farmer and convenience-store owner in Rowlesburg, W. Va. Castle thought he had cut a good deal when he leased 800 acres for $5 an acre and the standard royalty of one-eighth of production, until more land agents showed up offering as much as $350 an acre. "There's got to be a law broken]somewhere," he told the reporter. We doubt it, though Castle does report a possible fraud, saying the leasing agent told him that drillers could get his gas without paying him anything. That may be true, but it certainly would be illegal.

In most states, landowners can form a pool that companies find more attractive for development and for which they are willing to pay higher prices. The story mentions a group of farmers in New York's Broome and Delaware counties that got $2,411 an acre and a 15 percent royalty for a five-year lease. Typically, such leases are renewable; they also can be renegotiable, if the landowner gets that right up front.

West Virginia lawyer David McMahon and the West Virginia Surface Owners' Rights Organization advise landowners to "take their time and refuse to be rushed into signing leases," AP reports. McMahon "also suggests rejecting standard leases in favor of documents containing protections against roads, potential pollutants such as saltwater injections, and use of depleted wells for gas storage. Herschel McDivitt, director of Indiana's Division of Oil and Gas, offers similar advice. "There just aren't a lot of savvy landowners out there," McDivitt said.

In Pennsylvania, Penn State horticulture specialist Thomas Murphy has organized a program to help landowners get the best deals. One session recently attracted a standing-room-only crowd of 1,200. For Penn State's Web site on the subject, click here.

Why Not Go Green?

With Earth Day recently behind us, many people have stepped up their efforts to go green. And there are a number of things you can do, including planting a tree and recycling your plastic, glass and paper.

But what is even better than recycling your paper is not having any paper to begin with.

Going green is yet another of the many reasons to complete your business transactions with Social Security online. You can complete all of your paperwork with a lot less paper.

Whether you want to apply for retirement benefits, request a replacement Medicare card, report a change of address or direct deposit if you are currently receiving benefits, or take charge of your retirement planning, you can do it on our website.

There is no need to drive to your local Social Security office. Do not wait in traffic when your Social Security business can be done from the comfort of your home or office. Save a trip and go to www.socialsecurity.gov/onlineservices to get started.

Many of these services can be completed online without taking another step. Some services require you to mail in documents and information. Regardless, you will be ahead of the pack by using our online services.

You can rest assured that doing business with Social Security online is fast, easy and secure. And it is environmentally the cleanest, greenest way to do your Social Security business.

Many of our online services are available as automated phone services as well. Just call 1-800-772-1213 to take advantage of them.

Earth Day is a great time to step up your efforts to go green, but you can go green any time during the year. Save a tree, save some gas and cut back on pollution by visiting us online instead of at an office.

For more information, visit www.socialsecurity.gov or call us at 1-800-772-1213 (TTY 1-800-325-0778).

Bernard O'Nan is the district manager at the Ashland Social Security office. A representative from the Ashland office visits West Liberty every first and third non-holiday Monday at the Community Center starting at 8:30 a.m. The Ashland office can be reached at 606-324-0516.

RIDDLES

Why did the student eat his homework? The teacher told him it was a piece of cake.

When is it the best time to go to the dentist? Tooth-hurty.

What do you call Batman and Robin if they get hit by a steam roller? Flatman and Robin.

Name three poles? North, South, and Tad.

POEM

How precious it is, Lord, to realize that you are thinking about me constantly. I can't even count how many times a day your thoughts turn toward me.

Menifee County Elementary students checked out their wetland during a PRIDE Environmental Education Outreach Program lesson on ecosystems.

Guest teacher available to Morgan County schools

SOMERSET, KY — Local schools have the chance to host an environmental education specialist each month during the next school year. If Morgan County joins the PRIDE Environmental Education Outreach Program, a PRIDE liaison will visit the county's elementary schools to lead fun, educational lessons about the environment.

The PRIDE liaison brings hands-on activities that prepare students for state science tests and life-long environmental stewardship. Topics include energy, botany, water quality and solid waste. The program serves 3rd through 5th grade classes, with an emphasis on 4th graders who are tested on science in the state's annual CATS testing.

This convenient program is available to the 38 counties served by PRIDE, but local leaders must pay a fee to enroll their schools. During the past school year, seven counties participated, and the PRIDE representative spent 226 instructional hours with 4,204 students.

"We soon will begin inviting county judges to sign up for the upcoming school year," said Tammie Wilson, PRIDE Vice President and Chief Financial Officer. "The county pays one fee that covers all schools, so our primary contact is the county judge. Some judges decide to invest their litter abatement funds from the state in the PRIDE outreach program, and some partner with conservation districts or city governments to share the fee."

"If educators want to learn more about the program, they can call our office in Somerset at 888-577-4339 or e-mail us at PRIDE@centertech.com," Wilson added.

Eastern Kentucky PRIDE is a nonprofit organization that promotes "Personal Responsibility In a Desirable Environment" in southern and eastern Kentucky. PRIDE works with communities to improve water quality, clean up solid waste problems and increase environmental awareness.

The Environmental Outreach Program reflects PRIDE's commitment to showing students why and how they should take personal responsibility for the local environment. The goal is to increase children's environmental knowledge by providing lessons tied to Kentucky Core Content and involving students in cleanup activities.

Jasper Leaves Kentucky

"Is Derrick Jasper going to transfer?"

That's been the popular question around the bluegrass for weeks. Last weekend, Jasper finally provided the answer—albeit not the one Kentucky fans wanted to hear.

"The decision to transfer is in no way an indication of my experience playing for UK," Jasper said. "I feel at this point in my life, it is important for me to be close to my family and I intend to transfer to a school closer to the west coast where I can see my family more often, and they can see me play."

Jasper's final season at UK was not a memorable one. The 6'6" point guard played in just 20 games after missing the first 10 recovering from microfracture knee surgery. Not having Jasper left the Cats completely out of sync. Kentucky dropped five of its first 10 with its most experienced ball handler out of the lineup. Once Jasper returned, he averaged four points and nearly six rebounds per game.

"It's a disappointment to lose Derrick, who was fantastic for us both as a person and a basketball player," said UK coach Billy Gillispie. "He had to battle through some injuries, but he was always willing to sacrifice for the good of the team."

Jasper's shooting skills left plenty to be desired—hitting 42% from the field and only 35% from the free-throw line. But he made up for it on the defensive end and on the boards, finishing with 109 rebounds and 17 blocked shots.

"I want to thank Coach Gillispie and the entire UK coaching staff for their guidance and support given me over these past two years," said Jasper. "I have grown a tremendous amount as a basketball player and most importantly a person, and feel it is largely due to the people involved with the UK basketball program."

Morehead Univ. to host 350 GSP students this mo.

MOREHEAD, Ky.—For the third straight summer, 350 of Kentucky's high achieving students will arrive on the Morehead State University campus for the Kentucky Governor's Scholars Program.

The 2008 GSP, which will begin on Saturday, June 21, will be celebrating its 25th Anniversary of the program.

During the program which ends Friday, July 25, the students will be divided into sections where they will participate in various academic, arts and enrichment activities. Each student will have a major and secondary area of study with day and evening classes and seminars, all while living in campus housing.

Charles Myers, MSU alumnus and former director of admissions, will serve again this year as GSP campus director. He is chair of the social studies department and a faculty member at Lexington Catholic High School.

"The presence of the Governor's Scholars Program is extremely important to Morehead State University," said Karla Hughes, provost. "It is an honor to have the GSP students on our campus again this summer. They are such an energetic, focused group of young people that are a pleasure to have at the University."

Established in 1983, the Kentucky Governor's Scholars Program was designed for outstanding Kentucky students who have completed their junior year of high school. The five-week, residential summer program provides academic and personal growth in a challenging, non-traditional environment that balances a strong liberal arts program with a full co-curricular and residential life experience.

Morehead State University is the only public institution that will host the 2008 program; private colleges Bellarmine University in Louisville and Centre College in Danville also will host the 2008 program.

For those who attended the 2007 GSP at MSU, the campus reunion has been scheduled for Tuesday, June 17.

Additional information is available by calling Al Baldwin, MSU's coordinator of GSP activities, at (606) 783-2150 or sending a message to a.baldwin@moreheadstate.edu.

MORGAN COUNTY HOMEMAKERS

West Liberty Homemakers

On Saturday morning, May 17, at 7:30 a.m., five members of the West Liberty Homemaker Club left West Liberty for an outing to Glendale, Kentucky. Glendale was having their spring festival. Upon arriving at Glendale the group enjoyed shopping in the booths and stores. A train ride around the town was also enjoyed. After leaving Glendale the group visited Abraham Lincoln's birthplace. The Abbey of Gethsemani, at Trappist, Ky.

From there they traveled to Bardstown for dinner at Kurtz, a family owned diner that had been there since 1935. After a delicious fried chicken dinner they traveled to Frankfort for shopping and a big Baskin Robbins Ice Cream Cone, arriving back in West Liberty at 9:30 p.m.

Those enjoying the trip were Nell Adkins, Nettie Goodpaster, Sherry Lykins, Monteza Lykins, and Cricket Cantrell.

Jimmy Durante was born with a nose that would have embarrassed most people. But he went on to become one of our greatest performers.

One day he was asked, "How did you manage to accept your features?"

He answered, "All of us have schnozzles. That is, we're ridiculous in one way or another. If not in our faces, then in our minds, or habits. When we admit our schnozzles instead of defending them, we begin to laugh and the world laughs with us."

There is not anything that you and the Lord cannot overcome. He promised, "My grace is sufficient for you, for My power is made perfect in weakness."

With His power, you can turn your schnozzles into success!
